Pat Conn named to Georgia Credit Union League

Pat Conn, chief executive officer of Camden County's oldest locally owned financial institution, United 1st Federal Credit Union, has been elected as one of the directors of the Georgia Credit Union League.

This prestigious league is the trade association for Georgia credit unions to assist them "in becoming the premier providers of consumer financial services in Georgia."

"Pat's election as one of the directors is recognition of his status as one of the leaders of the credit union movement in Georgia," according to Ed Walker, director of business development for United 1st. "Pat has been the CEO of United 1st for more than 20 years and has grown the credit union to where it is the 23rd largest credit union in Georgia in assets. That is significant when you consider that there are more than 160 credit unions in Georgia. This growth would not have happened without Pat's leadership. He has also been active in the Southeast Georgia Chapter of the League, once serving as president. This helped with statewide recognition."

The Georgia Credit Union League helps credit unions provide services to their members at a lower cost through co-operative efforts.
